Action Agency officials call for Bay gas system overhaul

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Council chambers overflowed with Concerned Citizens Tuesday night anxious to discuss the high prices of utilities in the city.

The Concerned Citizens were supported by John M. Wyatt, energy advocate of the Southeast Mississippi Community Action Agency and Doyle Moffett, executive director of the Gulf Coast Community Action Agency, who made strong presentations to the city leaders.

Kelly McQueen, city clerk, submitted two proposals to the Council on revamping of City gas, water and sewer charges prior to a presentation by Wyatt.

Charge a lower minimum rate with the residential consumer paying more for higher use, McQueen suggested.

"The Utility Department did some research and we have some problems with our rates on gas, sewer and also water," the city clerk explained.

Suggested changes in McQueen's first proposals included: On gas first 1,000 cubic feet $5.00; all in excess, $1.30 per 1,000 cubic feet.

On water first 1,000 gallons $4.50; and in excess, 60 cents per 1,000 gallons.

And sewer $3 minimum and 50 percent of untaxed water bill with a $7.50 maximum.

The second proposal by the clerk was: Gas first 1,000 cubic feet, 7.00; all in excess, 60¢ per 1,000 cubic feet.

Water first 3,000 gallons, $5; all in excess, 60 cents per 1,000 gallons.

And sewer $3 minimum, 50 percent of untaxed water to a maximum $7.50.

Current rates for residential gas are first 1,000 cubic feet, $6.94 minimum bill; next 2,000 cubic feet, 5.23 per 1,000; next 47,000 cubic feet, $2.78 per 1,000; all over 50,000, $1.90 per 1,000 cubic feet.

On residential water, first 3,000 gallons, $3.99 minimum; next 7,000, 62 cents per 1,000; next 20,000 gallons 53.8 cents per 1,000; next 50,000, 32.7 cents per 1,000; all over 100,000 gallons, 19 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Sewer charges 50 percent of water bill.

Wyatt reported to the Council he was, "Asked by Doyle Moffett, executive director of the Gulf Coast Community Action Agency, to assist the Hancock County Concerned Citizens Coalition to determine whether their utility rates are unusually high."

"I have extended my services to the Concerned Citizens as a resource and an aide in their efforts to ease the excess financial burden off the shoulders of the low income people of Bay St. Louis," Wyatt continued, adding, "I extend the same services to you, the City Council of Bay St. Louis."

Wyatt told the Council he had spoken to Councilman Fred Wagner who was appointed by the Council to look into the utility rates and submitted a letter to the Concerned Citizens by the Council and mayor two weeks ago.

Wagner was not present at the meeting due to a schedule conflict.

"It is apparent the Council has made some effort and I would like to applaud you on the effort to recognize the problem of high utility rates," Wyatt reported.

He continued, "I want to thank you for doing some study on behalf of the Concerned Citizens."

McQueen reported the help he received from Mayor Larry Bennett's staff in doing the research.

"Since March 9 of this year to the present, the Gulf Coast Community Action Agency provided direct assistance to approximately 400 persons to cope with the energy problem," Wyatt said.

The representative then added, "Of this total 12 percent were elderly, and 23 percent were handicapped. According to the latest bureau of the census figures, 15.9 percent of Bay St. Louis families exist below poverty level, having an income deficiency of $1,496."

Wyatt recommended the City Council

Flood ordinance change requested

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Michael Haas, Bay St. Louis attorney representing the Pearl River Development Corporation, filed an appeal yesterday with representatives of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) requesting a change in Pearl River's elevation classification, which retards development.

Haas's request followed FEMA representatives' presentation of a proposed re-study of flood-hazard areas in Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties at a public hearing in the Hancock County Courthouse Wednesday.

This re-study will examine and evaluate flood hazard areas which are developed and which are likely to be developed.

It will also determine flood elevations for those areas. Elevations will in turn determine the cost of flood insurance for residents within those areas.

Haas told FEMA representatives, "The Pearl River Development Corporation wants Hancock County's 13.1-foot mean sea level elevation classification in the flood plain area changed now to a 10-foot elevation classification." The attorney described Hancock County's classification of 13.1 feet elevation as "discriminatory," adding, "The elevation set in the flood plain area for St. Tammany Parish right across from us on the Pearl River is 10 feet, therefore Hancock County's listing should be 10 feet also."

A representative of the agency replied, "We welcome this type of information that's why we are here—to get public input."

POSSIBLE HELP FOR PARKING - An aid to the parking problems of Beach Boulevard, downtown Bay St. Louis, would be space behind the businesses was recommended at a Bay Council meeting Tuesday. Paul Vegas, chairman of the Bay Zoning and Planning Commission, pressed the Council as to whether they were going to issue building permits in violation of building regulations because of a lack of sufficient parking. Building inspector issuing illegal permits, Vegas says

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Paul Vegas, chairman of the Bay St. Louis Zoning and Planning Commission told the Council Tuesday his group is not happy with the way building permits were being issued by the building inspector.

"It is a waste of time on the part of our group to meet several hours about three times a month for building permits which are illegal to be issued by the building inspector," Vegas said.

The chairman of the Zoning and Planning Commission wanted the Council for an answer if they wanted the group to continue or disband.

"There have been eight or ten violations at the head of Main Street, we feel that whole area is going to be killed," Vegas reported.

Vegas read City regulations in regards to requirements for the establishment of commercial business pertaining to parking per employee, square footage of businesses for customers et., from the Bay's building regulations to confirm the commission's stand.

"They (commercial businesses) come to us for the small issues and we make the decisions, and then by violation permits are issued by Johnson (B.D. Fip) Johnson currently serves as the Bay St. Louis building inspector, and the headaches come up," Vegas explained.

"Mr. Johnson is not checking anything. The Homestead Restaurant, Marquez, Tull's Bedding, Saucier's new place, The Little Mushroom, Colley's Place, Dock of the Bay - every one of these places require off street parking. It is a hazard for kids on bicycles," Vegas added.

Council Attorney Joseph Gex reported that the Dock of the Bay did receive a zoning change before it was built from the Zoning and Planning Commission. Vegas said, "Well, they got the zoning change, but there was some discussion about a plan reportedly presented about six months ago about possibly having some parking down behind the business establishments on the water side of Beach Boulevard. A couple of the merchants in the area had made the proposal and Vegas reported that was one of the recommendations his Commission to help relieve the problem of parking.

Pete Benvenutti, Council member commented, "Gentlemen, this has been going on for several years, all the problems come from the main island."

County receives disaster funding

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors were in Jackson Wednesday seeking a determination of the amount of money to be allotted by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) for repairs of storm-damaged Beach Boulevard.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett said Wednesday a breakfast meeting at the Waveland Resort Inn Sunday between county and municipal officials and an FDAA official resulted in approval of federal disaster funds for the damaged road.

The mayor also said he is looking into the possibility of having the sand beaches along the road restored through the Board of Supervisors.

CONTROL SOYBEAN WEEDS

Because of the wet weather this spring, many soybean fields have serious weed problems. These weeds need to be controlled early or they will reduce yields.

If you have weeds in your soybeans, you need to get the control weeds now, and before the weeds get too big.

It is extremely hot weather now, and weeds are growing very fast. Weeds are a big problem in soybean fields.

Also, a properly insulated roof can lower the inside temperature up to five degrees. Fans installed in houses will move air and replace oxygen.

Apply enough water at each watering to wet the top three to five inches of soil.

Prepared to demonstrate their skills and meet new challenges, Mississippi 4-Hers and their adult volunteer leaders will gather at Mississippi State University Wednesday and Thursday for the annual State 4-H Congress and State 4-H Adult Volunteer Leaders' Conference.

"This event offers delegates an opportunity to share ideas, participate in contests and experience many learning opportunities," explains Kenneth Cook, 4-H youth development specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service (MCES).

"These 4-H'ers, representing the state's 189,000 4-H members, are among the most outstanding youth in the state," continues Cook.

"While at Congress, they will have an opportunity to demonstrate the results of their practical learning experiences through participation in more than 50 different contests."

Nominations of State 4-H Council officers will be made during Congress, with election following in July at the 1979 State 4-H Convention.

Elected youth leaders will represent Mississippi 4-Hers at various 4-H and other events during the year.

They will also assist the State 4-H Youth Development Department staff in designing programs to meet the educational needs of all youth.

Night activities planned for Congress will be packed with fun," says Cook. "In store for participants will be a disco dance, numerous fellowship activities, along with time to relax."

The 4-H program, the youth educational phase of MCES, uses a variety of methods to involve youth in worthwhile projects.

In the story, Williams was quoted as saying "The state (government) is as crooked as the federal government" in reference to taxes on gasoline.

"I didn't say anyone was crooked," Williams said Wednesday morning. He also said state government has no control over allocations of gasoline to individual owners, only controlling taxes levied on that gasoline.

Heritage lands preserved

The Wilkinson County Board of Education met last week and agreed to set aside 640 acres of school land to be added to the existing 593 acre Clark Creek Natural Area in southwest Wilkinson County. Action by the Board was the first such dedication of land received by the Wildlife Heritage Committee under the Mississippi Natural Heritage Act of 1978. The lands will be held in trust by the state and maintained in its present condition for scientific research, education, recreation, and enjoyment by the public.

"What this board has done is a milestone in conservation for Mississippi. This is the first time that land has been set aside under the terms of the Natural Heritage Act of 1978," Wildlife Heritage Commission chairman Senator Donald Strider of Charleston said.

"Under the provisions of the Heritage Act, any lands set aside in a voluntary manner, like the Board has done, will be managed and protected by the state so as to preserve their unique features for public use. We hope others, whether private individuals, industry, federal, state or local governments will follow this example in preserving other natural areas around the state," he added.

DAVE HARVILL
Echo Outdoorsman

This past week started off real slow, but ended with some good catches. The Louisiana marshes are the best spots for speckled trout. I have not heard of any red fish being caught in the Louisiana marshes, but some reds should start showing up real soon.

Some of our local fishermen and fisherettes made some big catches this past week. One party that I know about making a good catch included Ronnie, Caroline and Lawrence Favre, George Delpert, Floyd, Donna and Jerry Holland. Jerry and Lawrence are two of our younger sportsmen.

Harry Garber and party made a real nice catch of specks this past week in Louisiana marshes. Harry puts the hurt on the specks just about every time he goes out.

Sam Myatt along with his wife and Richard Theater caught 20 reds on live shrimp Wednesday while fishing out of LaFrance's fishing camp. Sam and party are from Lumberton.

The Diamondhead annual fishing rodeo will start tomorrow and run through Sunday. The registration fee will be $5 for members and $10 for non-members.

King fisherman will be crowned Sunday evening and awards will follow.

BAD SITUATION
This past week some local sport fishermen reported to me about the dead fish at the Bayou Caddy public boat launch.

When I launched my boat Monday I almost got sick from the smell of rotten dead fish. Something should be done about this health hazard. Shrimp boats should not be allowed to dump dead fish in the bayou or near the bayou.

FISHING CAMP NEWS
LaFrance's - Everybody that went out this past week caught some specks.

Pat and Pierre Callens caught some large specks at Pole Cat Bend. Pat and Pierre live at Heron Bay Estates. Dot and Rodney Warner caught an ice box of specks at Half Moon.

Live and dead bait is available also skills can be rented. Mrs. Toxie Hall reports.

Bordages
The fish bite really good all weekend at Half Moon and all over the Louisiana marshes. The fish are showing up real fine.

Eddy Heath and C. C. McDonald caught three ice chests full and left them sitting.

Baxter's
The fresh water fishing was not too good this past week. The Pearl River is getting muddy again for no real reason. The water was cleaning, but this week muddy water has moved in and has hurt fishing, Roy Baxter reports.

Joe's Bayou - Quite a few rat reds were caught this week. Henry Neyrey of New Orleans caught ten rat reds and sheepshead. Rat reds also were caught at the Jordan River cut off by other fishermen, Mrs. Allie Cosplich reports.

POPULAR BASS
Name the most popular game fish in America. If you said black bass, you're right.

According to the experts in Mercury outboards fishing department there are 10 members of the black bass family in this country.

Naming them in order of importance to sport anglers, the largemouth bass is number one. They are found in every state, live in almost all unpolluted waters and are known for their fighting abilities.

Second in popularity is the smallmouth bass. They are found in the larger streams and rivers of the upper half of the continent. They are known for their fighting abilities and are known for their fighting abilities.

Bits 'n pieces

We are glad to hear about Hancock County being placed on the disaster list by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration.

There are a lot of folks who worked very hard to have Hancock returned to the list after being dropped from consideration.

Two main people we would like to congratulate are Bay Mayor Larry Bennett and Donn Murray, who both were appointed to the Governor's Disaster Committee.

We realize there are others who helped and feel they should all be given a big thank you.

Some folks had the idea they were barking up the wrong tree as the saying goes, but they got fooled this time.

If Bay St. Louis is to grow and continue to grow we will have to contend with some growing pains.

A word of caution of course is to look into the future as much as we can possibly can.

We are making mention of this because of the Tuesday night meeting which brought to light that business establishments were mentioned as being in violation of the building code for proper parking.

A good suggestion would be for the businesses, zoning and planning commission members and the Bay Council to sit down and talk over the problem.

Glad to see the pouring of a railing at the end of Beach Boulevard at Jourdan River by Supervisor Oscar Peterson.

Someone not familiar with the road could have gone over the seawall. We do hope that the new signs to be installed will remain there for the purpose they are put up.

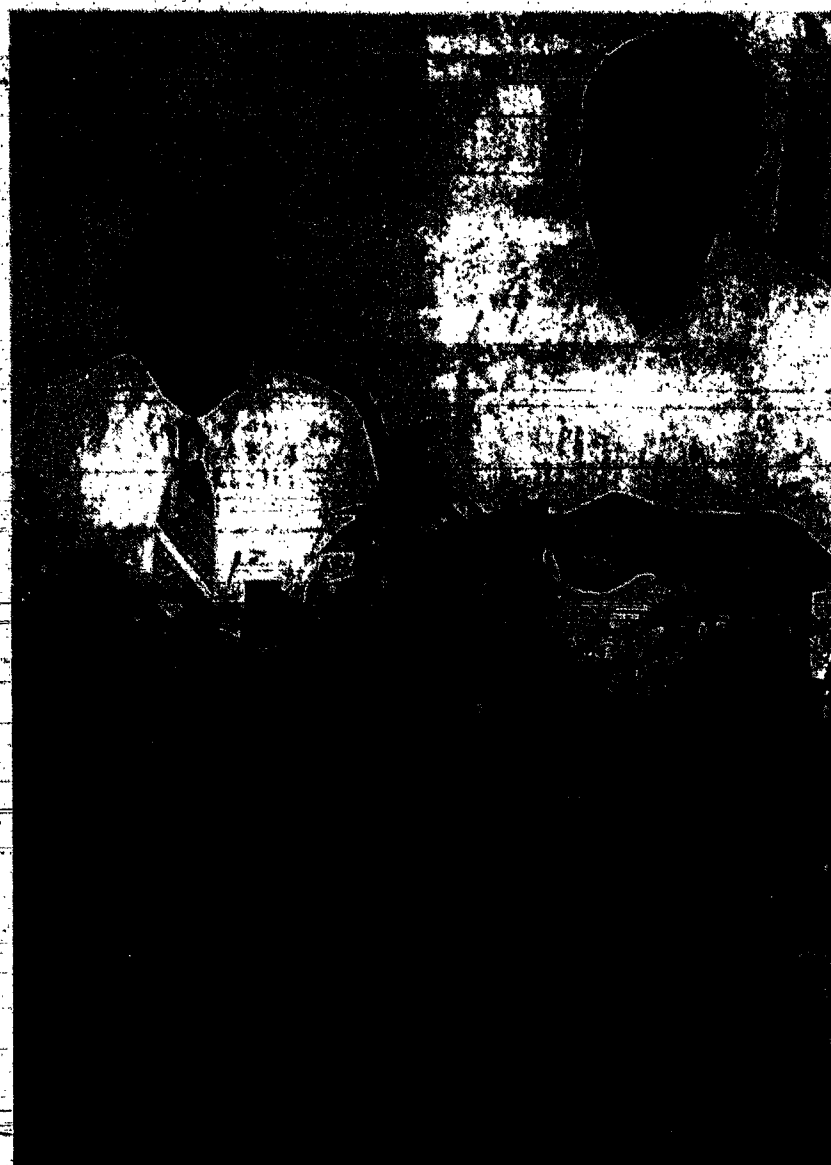

We the taxpayers pay a heavy debt every year for the replacement of signs throughout the County when you add the cost all up.

Some people will never grow up and realize that when a sign is destroyed, the people have to pay to replace it.

Sec. 17-2. Advertising - Bill posting.

It shall be unlawful for any person or his employee or agent to post, paste or otherwise affix bills, poster, or other advertising matters on the sides of buildings, posts, fences, telegraph, telephone or electric poles or other public places on or near the street of the city; provided, however, that nothing herein shall prevent regularly licensed bill posters from posting bills and other advertising matter on boards therefor, and at places designated by the mayor, nor shall the provisions of this section operate to prohibit or prevent persons from placing their signs on or to the buildings occupied by them and where their business is transacted.

Supervisors seek end to jail overcrowding

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Hancock County Board of Supervisors Monday approved a resolution supporting the acquisition of a grant which will be used for funding a program designed to reduce inmate population in jails within Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties.

The Gulf Regional Planning Commission (GRPC) has applied for a $225,000 federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant for a program designed to remove alcohol and drug offenders from maximum security cells.

Jail Taylor, GRPC planner, told supervisors Monday this alternative of decreasing overcrowded jails is being sought, "because there are no more construction funds for new jail facilities."

Taylor added Hancock County will have to pay approximately $1,100 or $1,200 in matching funds if the grant is acquired.

"Approximately 40 percent of all arrests are drug related and are severely impacting jails," Taylor emphasized.

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner calls the program to decrease inmate population "a good idea."

"The program will assess, evaluate, and make recommendations pertinent to practices related to arrest, release, detention and sentencing appropriate for each criminal justice system component as it relates to use of jails," an excerpt from a rough draft of the program states.

Taylor said the Mississippi Gulf Coast Regional Criminal Justice Coordinating Council is responsible for the project, the GRPC is only acting "as a staff arm" with the project.

In other business the Board:

—Granted engineers for the Kiln Water and Fire District permission to sever minor county roads during implementation of the Kiln's water system, providing the district will be responsible for repairing the severed roads.

—Told Sheriff Sylvan Ladner they would provide signs along the beach road notifying travellers of the heavy traffic ban placed on vehicles. Ladner complained the ordinance is "vague" and not well publicized.

—Closed Washington Street in Pearlman from Hwy. 904 to Hancock Street and granted title of the property to George and Rodrick Pullman who own all the property adjacent to the street.

—Authorized the proposed Bayou Cadet mooring basin project engineers, Burk and Associates, to apply for a $200,000 Coastal Energy Impact Program grant which will fund land acquisition cost, roadways and other incidental costs of the anchorage basin.

—Authorized Bay Aviation Inc., assignment of Aero International's lease as fixed-base operator at Stennis International Airport.

U.S. judge lifts L & N speed limit

Louisville and Nashville Railroad trains which carry hazardous materials through the southern end of Hancock County are no longer bound by a federally-imposed 30-mile-per-hour speed limit.

A federal judge in Washington Monday overturned a government order that set the speed limit on all L&N trains carrying hazardous materials.

The Federal Railroad Administration order was too broad because it failed to tell the railroad what track repairs were needed to get the directive lifted, U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said.

The FRA also went too far in demanding as part of the order that the trouble-plagued railroad improve its management operations, Gesell ruled.

The railroad agency issued the open-ended order Feb. 7 following a series of derailments, most of which appeared to involve track deficiencies.

In April, the National Transportation Safety Board reported that over a three-year period, L & N accidents accounted for 33 deaths, 356 injuries and $24 million in property damage.

The railroad administration said L&N was conducting a similar period of track inspection and repair.

In addition to the speed limit, the FRA order required the railroad double track frequency for track in the area.

Gesell said the FRA is deciding whether or not the provisions of the order are necessary for the safety of the railroad's training and maintenance programs and the extent to which the railroad disciplines employees who violate safety standards.

The judge said an emergency order like this one — issued before hearings were held — "may not relate to defects in L&N's management, personnel or general operating policies, as opposed to defects in L&N's tracks."

Gesell noted the railroad's argument that the order fails to indicate how the railroad can correct unsafe conditions identified only generally.

"The order . . . permits the (FRA) administrator, despite the passage of considerable time, to continue in his failure to identify what trackage he believes needs to be corrected and to continue to decline to inform L&N what specific action would establish that corrective action . . . had been taken," Gesell said.

Blacks rejoice open primary death

Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis
Dear Editor:

The following is the text of a telegram Mayor Charles Evers of Fayette sent to the U.S. Justice Department on Wednesday, June 13, 1979:

"Mr. Drew S. Days III, Chief Civil Rights Division
U.S. Justice Department
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Days:

At a time when Mississippians really needed you and the Justice Department, you were there!

I have reference to the Mississippi Open Primary Bill which the Justice Department reviewed and found unacceptable.

You are to be commended for looking beyond the facade and seeing the legislation for what it really was: A tool to minimize the impact of Black and Republican candidates in Mississippi. After we visited you in Washington in April, several of those who went with us had misgivings about whether the Justice Department would reject the bill.

Thanks to you and your staff, and the Attorney General, we can now rest until such time that the Mississippi Legislature pulls this same tactic four years from now, as they did four years ago.

Again, thank you for your consideration of our unhappiness and dissatisfaction with the Open Primary Bill.

I feel that Blacks, minorities and Republicans can now be about the business of strengthening their already strideful political progress.

Sincerely yours,
Mayor Charles Evers

Higher Learning trustees

to meet at Gulf Park

The June meeting of the Board of Trustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning continues on the Gulf Coast, today, according to Bobby L. Chain, president of the Board.

Regular monthly meetings are held in Jackson, but it has been the board's custom, however, to meet on the campuses of the eight universities when possible.

"Although we do not have a main campus of one of our universities on the Coast, we have the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs and a regional campus of the University of Mississippi in Long Beach, which play a very important role in the educational atmosphere of the Gulf Coast," Chain said.

The Board met shortly after noon Wednesday at the Gulf Coast Research Lab for general business and committee meetings.

Thursday's meeting moves to USM-Gulf Park in Long Beach for a general meeting, review of committee reports and other business, beginning at 9 a.m.

A press conference will follow the Board meeting.

The Board of Trustees has responsibility for the operation of Mississippi's eight state-supported universities, the Gulf Coast Research Lab and the Mississippi Research and Development Center.

In addition to Chain, members of the Board include Dr. Robert Harrison, Jr., Yazoo City; Dr. Verner Holmes, McComb; Charles Jacobs, Jr., Cleveland; Dr. John Lovelace, Batesville; Tommy Munro, Biloxi; Travis Parker, Drew; Denton Rogers, Jr., Pontotoc; Ms. Betty Shemwell, Hernando; William Shoemaker, Meridian; Ms. Miriam Simmons, Columbia; Boswell Stevens, Macon and Ms. Betty Williams, Columbus.

Pass High enters four into 1979 Hall of Fame

Miss Tracy Terrell Moran was honored as valedictorian at Pass Christian High School's recent 1979 graduation exercises.

Delivering the salutatory address on the occasion was Ms. Robin Roberts. Site of the ceremonies was Francis P. McDonald Stadium where Rev. Msgr. James McGough delivered the invocation; Superintendent of Schools Leroy Lizana delivered the welcoming address; and Principal Adrian J. Swanner presented the graduation class.

Diplomas were presented by Lizana, and the benediction was asked by Rev. Dr. Nathan Walker Jr.

Class officers for 1978-1979 included: Lora Shiyon, president; Ms. Roberts, vice president; and Delon Torgeson, secretary-treasurer.

Recipients of American Legion Awards were Ms. Roberts and Clark Shull.

The Camille Award for "courage, service and loyalty" went to Ms. Torgeson and Tam Tran.

Kenneth Hunt and Ms. Torgeson won the Danforth Challenge Award; and the Herff Jones Award went to Lora Shiyon.

The Kalif Memorial Award to a secretarial student exhibiting academic achievement, leadership and initiative went to Carol

By S. Grady Thigpen

Mississippi frontier settlement aided aided by Homestead Act of 1862

In 1862, Congress passed the Homestead Act. President Lincoln promptly signed it into law. Before that time the government sold public lands to citizens.

Under the Homestead Act, a qualified person could enter a claim for up to 160 acres of land at practically no cost. A small application fee was all the money required.

A homesteader had to agree to live on the land and use it for a period of five years. At the expiration of which time he could get a patent to his land after publishing in the county paper an instrument signed and sworn to before a proper authority, certifying that he had met all the conditions required by the Homestead Act.

If there was no county paper, a notice to the same effect had to be posted in the proper place in the county courthouse.

All citizens were eligible to homestead public land except those who had borne arms against the United States.

This exception barred many of the men in the South, as most of them had served in the Confederate Army.

Later on Congress passed an act allowing confederate veterans to apply for homesteads if they would sign an instrument swearing their allegiance to the United States.

When I first began to read the papers up in Jasper County, Mississippi about 1898 or a little later, I remember seeing then and for several years thereafter many of the proofs of completion of homestead requirements which qualified applicants to get title to their land.

The final instrument conveying the land was called a patent.

A patent in this case means the same thing as a deed to the land.

There seems to have been a more or less rush during the late 1890s and early 1900s to homestead public land, the inference being that people had begun to realize that all the public land was being fast taken up and that soon there would be none left.

Back in the early days many people squatted on public lands. The word squat is defined by the dictionary as: "To settle on a piece of land without title or payment."

A squatter is described as: "One who settles on public land without permission or right as on public or unimproved land."

In the early days of this country there was so much unused or idle land almost everywhere available to anyone that land had very little value. If a man bought land he would have to pay taxes on it; as a result, many people simply went into the great tracts of unused land, picked out a place to settle on, built their houses and lived there all their lives without interference from anyone.

There seems to have been an unwritten law, generally observed, that if a man occupied a tract of land no one else would interfere.

If there was a dispute, what was called squatter's rights was invoked, which gave the man living on it the preference.

Immediately after the Civil War there seems to have been many places over the South where squatters moved away, due to the greatly changed conditions, making no effort to claim their places under any protection given to squatters.

These men who left, almost without exception, did not qualify for homesteads due to their having served in the Confederate army.

There were three instances where squatters left places they had long lived on 7 miles northwest of Piquette.

They had joined the Confederate army and never came back after the war was over.

Whether they lost their lives in the war or just simply went on to other places, no one seems to know.

When I tried to find out their names and what became of their families, no one now living could tell me.

Apparently, after waiting some time for the return of these men and their families, three Confederate veterans, who had returned after the war was over, occupied these old houses and farms.

They too became squatters as they were not eligible to homestead the land because of having borne arms against the United States.

In agreement with old time custom, these men lived there peaceably with never any trouble from anyone.

Two of these men were Burrell Perry Henley and his son, John Henley.

These men were descendants of Jeremiah Henley, who came to this area when the French ruled here.

Meremiah Henley was a friend of the French and was one of a number of men from this section who joined the French Foreign Legion and went to France.

They were members of Napoleon's army on the disastrous march to Moscow and the French defeat there.

The land where the Old Henleyfield Church and cemetery are was granted to Jeremiah Henley.

He lived on this property in his later years and reared a big family. H. V. Henley, a descendant, wrote that Meremiah Henley moved there in 1815. He has many descendants now living in this area.

The other confederate veteran to move into one of these old homes was Benjamin F. Burge, Sr.

B. F. Henley took the oath of allegiance to the United States and made homestead entry for his land in 1884, though he had moved there in 1869 or 1870.

He built a new house on the land not long after moving there. He built a dam and erected a grist mill on a creek on the place.

He cleared more land, built cribs, smokehouse and other necessary buildings. Eight years later or in 1892 he received patent to his land.

Upon the death of B. F. Henley, Dan Henley, his son, became the owner of his old place. He operated the grist mill for many years.

Orease Henley, his son, now living near Piquette, said that his father operated the grist mill as long as he lived. He said the rocks in this old mill was exceptionally large ones.

He had no idea where they came from; however, it is almost certain that he ordered them shipped to him at Gainesville and then hauled them to the mill site by ox team from that old river port and largest town in this area 100 years ago.

Orease Henley, one of thirteen children, said: "Every once in a while there would be so much rain that the mill dam would be breached by high water and partly washed away."

He said his father would say to his mother at such times, "Well, we are ruined." But as soon as the water went down he would take all his boys and other help and with the aid of wheel barrows and shovels rebuild the dam.

People over a wide area got their corn ground at his old mill - now only a memory.

After living on the land for many years, Benjamin Burge's wife got a patent to his land in 1892, indicating that he was at that time dead.

Burge, too, reared a big family, most of whom settled in the immediate area. James Marion Burge, a brother of Benjamin F. Burge, also settled in that community and reared a big family.

Because there were so many Burges in the community in the course of time it became known as "Burge town," the many years, Benjamin Burge's name by which it goes down to this day.

Energy advocate shows how to read gas meters

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Your gas bill just arrived for the month of May. It seems more expensive than you expected.

Is the charge correct? "How am I supposed to know I can't read the gas meter," you rhetorically reply.

Now you can.

John M. Wyatt, energy advocate for the Southeast Mississippi Community Action Agency, recently taught several Bay St. Louis residents how to read their gas meters while he was conducting a study on the Bay St. Louis gas rate structure in March.

He compared the Bay's rates to neighboring cities in Forrest and Harrison counties of comparable size and found "Bay St. Louis utility rates were not excessive when compared to neighboring counties, but the cost of the first 1,000 cubic feet of gas is excessive."

Mrs. Athalia Piernas, coordinator of the Gulf Coast Community Action Agency in Hancock County adds, "This rate structure penalizes the consumer who saves energy."

The Bay St. Louis City Council is presently studying the Bay's rate structure.

Wyatt explains reading your own gas meter is fairly simple.

"First you've got to find it," the energy advocate asserts, "It's low to the ground and supported by pipes."

Once found, the meter will have four circular windows calibrated in units of cubic feet of gas, he continues.

From right to left, the first dial is calibrated in 1,000 cubic feet; the second in 10,000 cubic feet; third in 100,000 cubic feet and fourth in 1,000,000 cubic feet.

The next step, he says, is to then read each dial.

"Register, or write down the lowest whole number the arrow on each dial is pointing at," he emphasizes.

"It's as simple as that," the energy advocate explains.

Photo A
Using the meter dial in PHOTO A for example, the meter would be 3,000 cubic feet of gas.

Wyatt said the meter is supported by pipes and is low to the ground. He said the meter is not a complicated device and that anyone can read it.

Wyatt said the meter is not a complicated device and that anyone can read it.

Wyatt said the meter is not a complicated device and that anyone can read it.

"First, you can look at your old gas bills and determine when your meter was read in the past. Let's say your meter was read on 4-29-79, 5-28-79 and 6-29-79—a pattern develops—chances are the meter reader will probably read your meter about the 29th day of each month."

"The second way," says Wyatt, "is simply to ask your meter reader when he reads your meter."

Wyatt suggests a consumer read the meter about the same time as the meter reader, beginning the billing period, and then read the meter at the end of the billing period to determine how many 1000 cubic feet of gas was used.

"By a home-owner checking his own meter he can determine how successful his attempt to conserve energy has been over a period of time," Wyatt explains, "you can tell whether your meter is being monitored properly and it generally makes you more aware of energy consumption."

During Wyatt's study he noted several home owners in Bay St. Louis had buried their gas meters, yet the utility company still billed the resident, "apparently the person doing the recording was estimating consumption," he recalled.

Wyatt added there was one home owner whose meter had one arm broken off one of the four dials, but the utility company still billed the consumer.

"I don't see how the person could have been billed properly with the arm missing—how could anyone know the correct usage with a missing arm," he insisted.

Wyatt said the meter is not a complicated device and that anyone can read it.

FASTACTION - Local officials and Len Bracewell, center, Sunday made an on-site review of damage caused by a late April storm to Beach Boulevard. Monday, Bay Mayor Larry Bennett and Donna Murray received word that Hancock County had been added as a disaster area by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration of which Bracewell is a member. (Staff photo-J. Randy Ponder)

DISCUSSING STORM DAMAGE - Political leaders meet Sunday with Len Bracewell, right, field representative of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, before a tour of the storm damaged Beach Drive. At the meeting were Bracewell, Supervisor James Travira, Bay Mayor Larry Bennett, Supervisor Bert Courge, Donna Murray of Boardway and Seal; Larry Seal, Broadway and Seal County Engineers; Supervisor Oscar Peterson, Waveland Mayor Johnny Longo and Supervisor Sam Perdicaro with back to camera. Bennett was appointed by Governor Cliff Finch to serve on the State Disaster Committee and Murray was appointed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors. (Staff photo - Ellis Cuevas)

Disaster funds.....

most part of the road at Bayou Cadet was damaged April 22 and 23 during high winds and water.

Bennett said disaster fund requests were initially denied the cities and county because the governor's office thought the damage was caused by coincidental East Pearl River floods and not rough winter and water.

"Our problem was not flood-related," Bennett said Wednesday.

"Jackson thought the damage was caused by floods and denied us the necessary funds," Bennett continued.

"We came back, drafted a resolution to the Board of Supervisors, and on June 12 hand-delivered the resolution to the governor, explaining the damage was because of a storm, not the flooding," he explained.

"We were able to get Jackson to send an official for an on-site inspection," the mayor added.

Bennett explained the route taken to receive the necessary funds to repair and replace the damaged stretch of road.

"We go to the governor and receive his ok," Bennett explained.

"From then we go to Jackson to the office of disaster headquarters, then on to Atlanta, Ga., the regional office, and finally to Washington, where the national director of FEMA sends the request to the president," Bennett added.

The mayor said the amount of disaster relief funds would not be known until the return of the Board of Supervisors late last night.

"Once the board gets back, we will know exactly how much we have to work with," Mayor Bennett said.

The mayor said repairs of the road will include minor overlays to total reconstruction of the roadbed and repaving.

"Some places we will just overlay and some will have to be totally replaced," Bennett said.

"There are some spots in the road where the entire bed is washed out and steel joints are the only thing holding the road together," he added.

Bennett said he is also going to approach the Board seeking funds to restore the beaches along the road, many of which were washed out by the storm.

"I have not talked to the Board about restoring the beach yet, but a lot of the beaches did get washed away as a result of the storm," Bennett said Wednesday.

The mayor praised the Board of Supervisors for their cooperation and congeniality in dealing with him in a joint effort to obtain the funds.

"I worked very closely with the Board of Supervisors and they are a very congenial group to work with," Bennett said Wednesday.

"We worked together very well," he added.

customers use all utilities, with 20 percent of the residential using heat exclusively by electricity and 11 percent of the units not on sewerage, he said.

According to Wyatt, "A consumer who pays a specific amount of money for a specific service has a right to have that money applied only to the utility he is using, and not to another utility from which he derives no benefit whatsoever."

Several recommendations were made to the Council by Wyatt, including the hiring of R.W. Beck and Associates to provide new rate structures, new accounting system and the revision of existing departmental administrative guidelines.

The reason Wyatt gave for the hiring of Beck is "Realizing that neither the city government, or the residents possess the necessary expertise to undertake the required changes."

Comments were made as to where the necessary funds would come from in regards to hiring some firms. The reported $50,000 in arrears by utility customers was recommended as a possible source by Wyatt.

Wyatt mentioned also that another source would be the sale of the gas service to a private utility company, provided the same service would be offered at no higher rate than the city now charges.

City council members seemed interested in the sale of the gas utility, and Wyatt said then he knew of an interested firm.

Wyatt closed by giving names of utility consultants who had been

Bond issue included on 2nd primary ballot

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

A $3,711,450 capital improvements bond issue will go before the Hancock County School District electorate August 28.

Hancock County Board of Supervisors at its Monday meeting authorized calling of the election.

The bond issue will finance construction of a high school south of I-10 at a cost of $2,035,475, and an elementary school near Hancock North Central High School at a cost of $1,675,975.

The legal drafts of former school bond issue proposals have been plagued with errors.

According to legal draft, the new high school will consist of facilities necessary to insure the new school of being accredited by the State Board of Education, science and home economic departments, industrial arts, dressing room facilities, a gymnasium, field house, sewerage plant, administration offices, library, food service, music band, arts, social studies, mathematics, English, business education, special education, and driver education facilities.

The new elementary school, according to the draft, will include administrative offices, library, physical education, food service, thirty-three classrooms, sewerage plant, and four special education classrooms.

In other board action, supervisors approved St. Stanislaus students Carlos Lozano and Kevin Atwell's request for $1,500 to pay for the salaries of four advanced life-guarders who will provide life-guard surveillance of the Waveland surf where some 24 drownings have occurred.

Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge moved the money be allocated for the beach patrol and authorized the Hancock County Civil Defense to administer the students' plan to provide life-guard protection in front of the Gulfside Methodist Assembly Center.

The plan calls for a 1.5 mile area in front of the center to be patrolled on Saturdays and Sundays for a 10 week period beginning in July and ending in mid-September.

The advanced life-guarders will also provide the patrol on Fridays during special holidays such as July 4 and Labor Day.

The Waveland Board of Aldermen has announced it will provide equipment for the summer project if the Board would pay for salaries, Lozano said.

"If we save just one life by doing this, then I feel it was worth it," Beat Two Supervisor Alton Kellar remarked.

Flood ordinance.....

John Yeend, a FEMA engineer, said the purpose of FEMA's Wednesday meeting with the public, and governing officials was to acquire information about past floods to be used in conjunction with the study.

"A 13.1-foot elevation, in comparison to a 10-foot classification, would require an individual to pay a higher insurance rate, or either build up the land to that elevation, which is also expensive," Yeend explained.

FEMA representative Bill Massey told Haas he will send the elevation change request to FEMA's engineering division in Washington, but noted he does not know how soon, or if the change will be granted.

Duration of the re-study of coastal county flood hazard areas will be approximately 18 to 21 months, said Yeend.

Massey said the flood study will probably change some of the elevations in Mississippi when it is completed. Haas feels Hancock County should not have to wait for 2 years until the study is finished. He wants Hancock County's elevations changed now.

"Flooding is the nation's number one natural disaster," emphasized Massey, and flooding seems to be getting worse and worse because people keep moving to flood prone areas."

The re-study of flood hazard areas by FEMA will be accomplished with a 'new methodology,' explains Yeend, "we will use a computer model which will take into account hundreds of storms."

"The word needs to get out that federal flood insurance is available," he insisted, "just during April there was approximately $1 billion worth of damage done in the U.S."

"Flood insurance is basically cheap—the higher the structure the lower the rates," he added.

The National Flood Insurance Program only insures structures and the content of those structures.

"Very few cities and counties take advantage of insuring their structures," Massey intoned.

"States must now participate in the flood insurance program," he continued, "and must adhere to flood elevation regulations when building state buildings."

Massey said everyone should be working toward the same objective—restricting and reducing flood damage and reducing loss of life."

The representative also noted, "Local governments who are not participating in the flood insurance program will not be eligible for federal assistance."

The re-study of flood hazard areas by FEMA will be accomplished with a 'new methodology,' explains Yeend, "we will use a computer model which will take into account hundreds of storms."

PARKING ON BOTH SIDES - The Bay Council discussed the possibility of eliminating parking on one side of Beach Boulevard as a means of preventing traffic tie-ups. A pickup truck has to pull on the side to give the right-way to a compact vehicle Wednesday morning showing tightness caused by parking on both sides of Boulevard. Originally there was only one-side parking on Beach Boulevard when the road was reconstructed after Hurricane Camille. A city worker cleans sidewalk. (Staff photo - Ellis Cuevas).

the permits. He is not above the law. I don't think anyone, we or our predecessors have slapped his hands hard enough."

Benvenuti read a form aloud to the Council as a suggestion to be filled out by the person seeking a permit before one could be issued by the building inspector and then a copy be supplied to the City Clerk. The new form was accepted unanimously by the Council.

A further motion by Benvenuti that the mayor as Administrative Officer enforce all ordinances was seconded by Council President Jim Thrifflay. The motion when voted on came out 2-2 as Harry Kary and William Seymour voted against the motion.

Kary and Seymour, the Mayor, are the attorney and councilman who have been accused of being in the same business as a building inspector.

Benvenuti said he was going to look into the permits Wednesday as he made himself a note when he was discussed as to whether a moratorium would be put on permits in the Beach area.

There have been a few minor conflicts between the Council and the building inspector. Councilman Kary and Seymour are members of the zoning and planning commission and are in the building industry. It was recommended by the Council that the building inspector be removed and replaced by a councilman.

Vegas said he would try to have a meeting and come back to the Council. Councilman Kary and Seymour are members of the zoning and planning commission and are in the building industry. It was recommended by the Council that the building inspector be removed and replaced by a councilman.

Antique and gift show scheduled in Biloxi

The Mississippi Coast Convention Center will be the site of the 7th Annual Gulf Coast Antiques Show and Sale sponsored by the Women of the Church of the Redeemer. The show will be open to the public in June 29, 30 and July 1, when selected exhibitors from 13 states will offer for sale an extensive variety of antiques from many countries and spanning many centuries.

Experience based workshop offered

The University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park Division of Business Administration in Long Beach in conjunction with the Department of Management in Hattiesburg, is offering Supervisory Skills: Experience Based Workshops. Experience based workshops participants learn by doing through actually practicing the tasks in which they are gaining skills. Lectures and written materials supplement learning gained in the actual works setting.

are to increase participants ability in planning, organizing, directing and controlling; to further develop interpersonal leadership decision and communication skills; to improve competence in interviewing, counseling and disciplining and to enhance self-awareness and group cohesiveness.

The unique training generates involvement, is useful at all levels and produces on-the-job results. Participants are better able to lead and motivate employees, set realistic goals and organize their own and others work more effectively.

For additional information contact Programs for Business and Industry, Department of Conferences and Workshops, Southern Station Box 5056, Hattiesburg, Ms 39401.

LaFontaine infant baptized

April Lea LaFontaine, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton LaFontaine of Bay St. Louis, was baptized Sunday, June 3, in Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church with Rev. Louis Lohan, associate pastor, officiating.

Godparents are a maternal Mrs. George Anderson, and a paternal uncle, George Ray LaFontaine, both of Bay St. Louis.

Following the ceremony a family gathering was held at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Edna Puckett in Waveland.

'Great American Birthday Party' slated July 4

A July 4th event in Mississippi will be the "Great American Birthday Party" at Paul B. Johnson State Park just south of Hattiesburg.

The event will be a full day of activity, entertainment, booths and displays, games for families, and individuals, political speaking (because it is an election year), and a host of other activities all climaxed in the evening by a gigantic fireworks display over the lake, William E. Kirkpatrick, chairman said.

The "Birthday Party" started in 1975 during the Bicentennial and has continued with the exception of 1977 each year thereafter.

It was held at Kamper Park in Hattiesburg the first two times and last year it moved to Paul B. Johnson State Park and drew 32,000 people.

For additional information, please write Box 5016 Southern Station, Hattiesburg, MS 39401 or call (601) 266-7133.

A limited selection of fore-edge paintings, heirloom silver as well as a silver matching service, fine prints, maps and lithographs, charming wicker, beautiful paintings, and much more.

The Women of the Church of the Redeemer invite you to enjoy the past and invest in the future; to purchase magnificent antiques for today's pleasure and tomorrow's investment. Antiques offered for sale will appeal to the investor, the decorator, the homemaker, the collector, the young adult.

For those who may wish to buy now and pay later, both Master Charge and Visa will be honored at most booths. In addition, a $25.00 Gift Certificate, redeemable at any booth during the show, will be awarded daily. Snacks will be available during show hours. Booth hours are 1:00 P.M. to 9:00 P.M. on Friday and Saturday and from 1:00 P.M. to 6:00 P.M. on Sunday.

HOW TO GET A GREAT TAN

(WITHOUT FRYING)
For everyone who has ever spent what they thought was a wonderful day in the sun only to arrive home burnt, blotched, baked and swearing that "next time, I'll do it right," Bantam Books is rushing to press with a paperback original entitled HOW TO GET A GREAT TAN (WITHOUT FRYING).

Written by Roger C. Sharpe, Managing Editor of Gentlemen's Quarterly, in cooperation with New York skin-care specialists—Dr. Stephen Kurtin and Dr. H. L. Newbold, this special $1.99 Bantam Book will be published on June 15.

Illustrated with specially-created diagrams and charts on peak tanning times, various types of rays and their effect on the skin, etc., HOW TO GET A TAN (WITHOUT FRYING) also includes specific information on:

- Your skin type (how to know it, what to do about it);
- A guide to suntanning products (what they are, what they do, how to use them);
- How to set up a suntanning schedule (for a weekend or for a week's vacation);
- How to save your skin when the sun goes down;

Llewellyn's Personal Guides And Astrological Almanacs For 1980

The oldest astrology publisher in the Western hemisphere, Llewellyn Publications, has created its third mass-market series of pocket-sized daily forecast guides, to be published by Bantam in August—the month when astrology devotees begin looking ahead to the new year.

LEWELLYN'S is a series of 12 books—one for each sign of the Zodiac—and includes a day-by-day forecast for the entire year, a complete 1979 overview, and a daily astrological almanac of beauty, health, gardening, love, business and family matters as they are governed by the stars for each sign.

The guides are written by the Llewellyn Personal Service Staff under the supervision of Llewellyn President Carl Weschcke.

Llewellyn Publications has been publishing astrology books since 1901. Founded by Llewellyn George in 1901, Llewellyn Publications has grown to twenty times the size it was when its current president, Carl Weschcke, moved from Los Angeles to St. Paul, Minn., in 1968.

In addition to the hundreds of serious astrological and occult texts published by Llewellyn, the publishing house publishes many more popular astrology books, including the Llewellyn Astrological Almanac, the Llewellyn Astrological Yearbook, and the Llewellyn Astrological Calendar.

the field. Carl Weschcke has devoted his entire life to the study of occultism as philosophy, religion and practical application, and owns one of the largest private libraries of books on magic, astrology, witchcraft and the occult.

Llewellyn's aims, states Weschcke, are "publication, and popularization of serious astrological and occult texts." A devoted follower of the stars himself, Weschcke's approach to what many might consider the "supernatural" is non-nonsense and common sense.

His theories are based, not on frightening, doomsday-like predictions, but on channeling the positive energies that lie within each of us for a better quality of life—based on the advice of the stars.

Carl Weschcke graduated from Babson Institute where he majored in economics and did some graduate work in philosophy at the University of Minnesota.

He has been active in the NAACP and the American Civil Liberties Union. A practicing magician and witch, although not in the "mythologized" sense of those words, he and his family lived for a time in a house in the Twin Cities generally known to be haunted.

He now lives with his wife and son in St. Paul.

Some thoughts on Astrology and the Occult from Carl Weschcke, president of Llewellyn Publications, Astrologer, Magician and Witch:

THE OCCULT:
"The occult is really a process of waking up, of becoming aware of all the available energies and making use of them. It is a constant form of psychotherapy, the object of which is to make people grow into their potential."

ON MAGIC:

"Magic is itself a neutral thing, neither good nor bad except in its application. Any belief can be perverted; that is the history of all religion... But legitimate Magic has as one of its basic principles the requirement that it be used to harm no one. Magic requires spiritual and intellectual growth."

"There are many prominent people who are witches but it is infinitesimally rare that any real occultist would mix his religious beliefs and his political influence or his access to political power."

"Naturally, the revival of interest in the occult is going to produce a certain number of charlatans and opportunists and con artists. And you're going to see a lot of people who are not witches but who are trying to make a lot of money out of it."

But in the end, the occult is a very real thing. It is a way of life, a way of thinking, a way of feeling. It is a way of becoming aware of the energies that are available to us and making use of them. It is a way of growing into our potential.

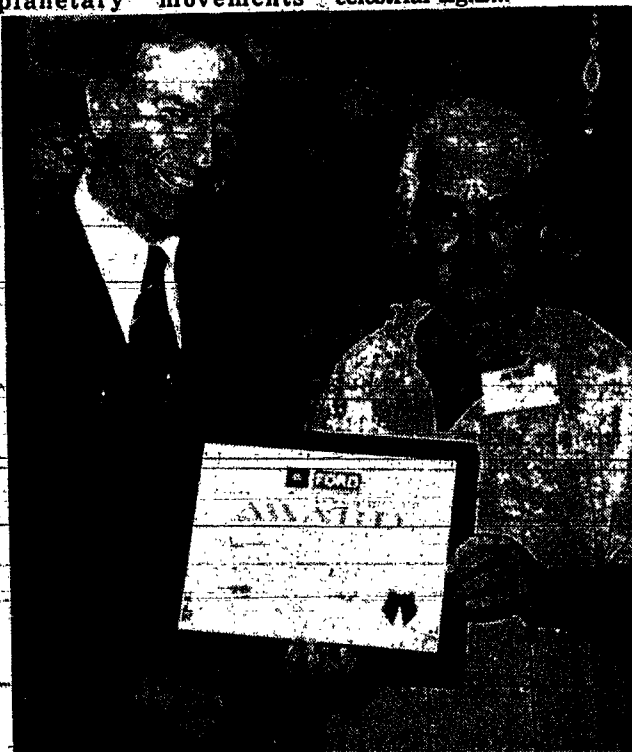

ON ASTROLOGY

"Astrology simply takes the mathematical measurements of planetary movements and positions to create a symbolic picture of an individual in time and space, beginning with the hour, day and place of one's birth. It doesn't concern itself, as some people think, with the fact that so-and-so will have a heart attack at age fifty-five."

"It is basically attempts to give a broader picture of how planetary movements correspond to developments in personal lives and human affairs, how historic and business cycles correspond to planetary movements.

"Astrology appeals to a large number of people—and highly respected people at that. In fact, psychoanalyst Carl Jung always cast a patient's horoscope before treatment to enable the patient to see facets of himself symbolized by planets and celestial signs."

MANAGEMENT AWARD—Jean (Clara) Kendall of Charlie's Ford in Waveland recently received a Ford Motor Company award for accounting excellence as business manager of the local dealership. Ms. Kendall earned the 1978 award in recognition of the submission of accurate and timely financial data and the contribution toward the success of the dealership. J.L. Hall, New Orleans district sales manager, made the award presentation at a luncheon in New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. George Heitzmann have returned from a visit with their son-in-law and daughter Lt. Col. and Mrs. Thomas Ruckman and children Thom, Kim, Julie and Rickey in Merced, Calif. They were accompanied home by their granddaughter Julie who will visit with them for several weeks.

Savory and Satisfying No-Fuss Dishes

All kinds of delicious possibilities open up when Chunky Soups are combined with other convenience food products. Spooned into baked frozen patty shells or topped with refrigerated biscuits, imaginative dishes can be created from familiar favorites. Leftovers, too, can be used to advantage when added to Chunky Soups. What a terrific way to avoid waste and to stretch your budget!

BUSY DAY BOUNTY
Cheesy herb biscuits add a flavorful touch to this dish.

1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (19 ounces) Campbell's Chunky Vegetable Soup
1/2 cup uncooked thin spaghetti broken in pieces
1 small olive garlic, minced
1/4 teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed

Mix thoroughly beef, salt and pepper. Shape into meatballs. In saucepan, combine onion, Italian seasoning, butter or margarine, and spaghetti. Cook until spaghetti is tender. Add meatballs and sauce. Simmer for 10 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese. Bake at 350°F for 15 minutes.

Waveland Seniors offer class on floundering

By Pere Cahibi, Club President
Senior Citizens of Waveland, Inc., has started a class in "floundering" being taught by Mrs. Shirley Cox on Mondays at 8 p.m.

All interested seniors can bring equipment—light and spear—to the beach at Oak Boulevard.

You may be fortunate enough to have a mullet jump smack into your net as one did for Mrs. Ada Belsome.

Daily swimming has been proven to be helpful for arthritis. So, Senior Citizens, loosen up those joints while you're looking for a flounder in the Mississippi Sound.

We are all invited to a 9 a.m. coffee at Scaffid's Wheel Inn Friday to meet Toxie Hall Smith, Jackson, candidate for attorney general.

Phone Pere Cahibi, 467-3453, to make reservations.

After coffee we can motor on to McLeod Park off Hwy. 603 for an 11:30 to 2 p.m. fish fry.

Big John Rutherford and supervisors will be the "cooks." Miss Elda Lourier conducts a sewing class every Tuesday at 2 p.m. at Costello Hall, St. Clare School Grounds, South Beach—Waveland.

Join us there, please.

Miller urges Seniors to register for jobs

Hancock County now has a Seniors' Job Registry located in Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Ave., Waveland.

The Seniors' Job Registry will serve as a free employment service for persons 55 years or older.

"If you are interested in full, temporary or part time work come in and apply. Or just come in and visit," says Ms. Wilma Miller, center coordinator.

There is no charge for this service, she added.

The center is a community service provided by the National Council of Senior Citizens Senior Aide Program, funded by the Department of Labor through the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District.

"To those Senior Citizens who wish to supplement their incomes, remember we need your abundant supply of skills and experience in all fields. We will need carpenters, painters, nurses aides, and many other skills too," Ms. Miller stated.

"Don't let your valuable work asset go to waste. Come in, now. The Seniors' Job Registry office is open 9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m., Monday thru Friday, or call 467-8255," she reminds.

Francis Adkins of Gulfport, director of SMPDD's Senior Aides Program in Hancock and Harrison, said his office is striving to eventually have a job center in "most" Coast communities.

Usm begins institute for elderly

The University of Southern Mississippi, Division of Continuing Education and Public Service (CE-PS) recently received a grant from the board of trustees to conduct an Elder's Institute in Hattiesburg and on the Gulf Coast.

These informal courses are being conducted for and by retired persons to promote continual learning and productive use of time, according to Dr. Clyde Ginn CE-PS dean. The institutes will begin in September of 1979, will run through May 1980.

"Through informal educational experiences we hope that this program will provide life-long learning and social enrichment for South Mississippi's elderly," said Ginn, project director.

Topics will include, genealogy, Mississippi history, food preparation, health, budget and consumer tips, hobbies, crafts and creative writing.

Six five-week classes will be conducted and during each five-week cycle two classes will be presented one day a week for two hours in both locations.

Rehearsals for the play "Biloxi" produced by Sheffield Ensemble Theatre (SET) have been under way for two weeks and according to directors Rita Sheffield and David Sheffield, they are very pleased with the potential of this group of people working together.

The play will be presented at the Saenger Theatre in Biloxi, Mississippi, on June 20 and 21. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children and seniors. Reservations can be made by calling 422-2121.

Without rehearsal, the play is a work of genius. According to writer David Sheffield, the play is a story of human survival and the struggle to create a new world.

Migrant education program concludes

The Hancock-Harrison Cooperative migrant program includes the following school districts, which are all located in Hancock and Harrison Counties:

Bay St. Louis Separate School District; Gulfport Separate School District; Biloxi Separate School District; Hancock County School District; Harrison County School District; Long Beach Separate School District; and Pass Christian Separate School District.

Gulfport Separate School District was the local educational agency which served as agent of record for this program.

A tutorial program supplemented regular classroom instruction in math and reading for 244 migrant students. Students were referred for evaluation and instruction by classroom teachers or other appropriate school personnel.

A psychologist-teacher diagnosed specific weaknesses which provided prescriptive information for teacher-tutors.

Four teachers and three aides provided educational services. A home visitor, social worker and a clerk provided other support services.

Improving kindergarten, a 2000 motor home, served 40 migrant five-year-olds in seven school districts on a bi-weekly basis in groups of 12 or less.

Children were screened for general health problems and nutritional deficiencies.

A unique feature of the Hancock-Harrison Program was the use of bilingual materials which provided migrant families and the local services they needed.

Each migrant child was assigned a teacher-tutor who provided individualized instruction and support. The program was a success in providing educational services to migrant children.

JUNE IS BUSTING OUT ALL OVER—And so are cats and kittens. These homeless felines join Morris, the famous cat food salesman, in a plea for adoption. June is national Adopt-A-Cat Month, a public service program designed by The American Humane Association and Morris' Company to help animal shelters find more good homes for their cats and kittens.

Morris, himself a shelter alumnus, is serving as "spokescat" for the program. During June, every person adopting a cat from Bay-Waveland Humane Society will receive a special adoption kit, compliments of Morris, according to adoption director Eleanor McFie. For information, call Ms. McFie at 467-9494.

Waveland Players auditioning Sun.

Waveland Players are conducting auditions at 3 p.m. Sunday in the VCI Center Auditorium on Old Spanish Trail in Bay St. Louis.

The Players' next production will be "U.T.B.U." or "Unhealthy to be Unpleasant" about a secret organization, UTBU, which is sworn to seek out unpleasant people and deal with them. One of UTBU's targets is Jay Francis Amker, a down and out actor that wants to "do in" his 94-year-old mother and finance his next play with the inheritance.

The cast includes six women and four men.

The women in the cast include: Shirley Amker, 84; three secretaries anywhere from 25-50 years old; Valerie Rogers, in her 30's to 40's; and Valerie's daughter, in late teens or early twenties.

The men in the cast include one in his mid-40's; one between 35-50; and two men around 30.

UTBU will be directed by Walter Vaughn and will be produced by Linda Dorian. The play will be presented sometime in August.

Back-stage help is also needed. A Players spokesman reported.

FRANK BLISS
Chief Petty Officer Frank Bliss is the new Coast Guard Recruiter for the Bay St. Louis-Waveland area. Chief Bliss was recently promoted to his present rank and transferred to New Orleans from the staff of the Third Coast Guard District in New York City.

He is an 11-year veteran of the sea services, having spent four years in the Navy before enlisting in the Coast Guard in 1971.

"The Coast Guard is a lot smaller than the other services and is humanitarian in nature. We are more efficient due to our size and quality of people found in the Coast Guard," Bliss said.

If you would like to talk to Chief Bliss about the Coast Guard and its multi mission responsibility, please feel free to call collect (504) 586-8284. You may also visit or write him at the Coast Guard Recruiting Office, Delta Towers, 133 S. Chalmette Ave., New Orleans, LA 70112.

Hurricane hunters entertain Gulf newcomers Club

The June luncheon meeting of the Gulf Coast Newcomers Club was held at the Army Summer Camp and Deaf Center. The Crafts Group will meet at the Gulfport to form car pool. The July luncheon will be at the Ocean Springs on July 10. Social hour at 10 a.m. Newcomers to the Gulf Coast area are invited to the luncheon. For further information call Mrs. G. R. Gault at 467-9494.

Brokers, salesmen pass exams

Twenty four persons passed the June real estate Broker's examination and are eligible to practice in the real estate profession as brokers, according to an announcement by J. Daniel Schroeder, Administrator of the Mississippi Real Estate Commission.

Delmer Elmer Wilcox of Waveland was among those who passed the real estate brokers' examination.

The 24 successful candidates were among 38 applicants who took the examination. Also, 190 persons participated in the real estate salesman's examination, including Mrs. Candy M. Cox, Picayune; Mrs. Cheryl Drake, Bay St. Louis; Ms. Norma L. Favre, Bay St. Louis; Harry C. Hackman, Pass Christian; L. Kent Robbins, Picayune; Mrs. Tina L. Stockstill, Picayune; Mrs. Paula W. Triche, Bay St. Louis; and Mrs. Evel Lee Woodward, Pass Christian.

The 190 successful candidates were among 280 applicants who took the examination.

Brief

OCHSNER SPECIAL
Dr. Alton Ochsner, who is generally credited with discovering the link between lung cancer and smoking and who founded the renowned medical complex in New Orleans that bears his name, is the subject of a special documentary to be rebroadcast on Mississippi ETV.

Dr. Ochsner at Eighty can be seen at 9:30 p.m. Thursday on the Mississippi ETV Network. Originally produced on the occasion of the physician's 80th birthday and aired last January, the program provides a view of his triumphs and tragedies from the perspective of an age few people attain—and fewer still with their intellect, enthusiasm and wit fully intact.

Forensics workshop scheduled

The Gulf Coast Forensics workshop for high school students and teachers will be held August 15-17 at the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park in Long Beach.

The workshop will consist of two sessions: the first emphasizing lecture and practice of debate theory and the second an intensive week of tutorials and practice debating.

High school and upper junior high students interested in debate, teachers coaching debate and who need six hours credit toward recertification and college students needing six hours of credit in public address should attend.

Dr. Sid Hill, associate producer of Communication and director of Forensics at Mississippi State University will be workshop director.

Registration will be held Sunday, Aug. 5 from 6-9 p.m. in Elizabeth Hall at Gulf Park. Pre-registration and deposit are required by June 15. For additional information contact Myron Webb, Coordinator of Conferences and Workshops, USM-Gulf Park, Long Beach, Miss. 39560.

Waveland man honored

Donald A. Caserta, C.L.U., of the Mid South Brokerage Agency, Metairie, has been honored by CNA Insurance as one of the company's top salespersons for 1978 at CNA's Key Club Convention held recently in Palm Springs, Calif.

CNA sponsors the Key Club convention annually to recognize the company's outstanding producers of the preceding year.

Mr. Caserta has represented CNA 14 of his 20 years in the insurance business and has qualified for Key Club 10 times.

USM offers courses at new NSTL office

Educational services of the University of Southern Mississippi have been extended on the Gulf Coast to include a new office at the National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL) in Hancock County.

"We opened the office to meet conference and workshops needs as well as to meet the in-service training needs of the various agencies at NSTL," Dr. Joe Holloway, dean of USM-Gulf Coast, said.

"NSTL has grown to a contingent of some 3,000 people and as the population has increased, so have the high educational needs, and, as has been our philosophy on the Coast, we intend to meet those needs," Holloway added.

Holloway has named Mrs. Myron Webb on Long Beach to coordinate activities of the new office.

Mrs. Webb is currently on the conference and workshop staff at Gulf Park in Long Beach and will coordinate USM-NSTL as an added responsibility.

In her role as coordinator, Mrs. Webb will be working directly with the various agencies located at NSTL to provide tailor made courses, programs, conferences, workshops and in-service training to meet their needs.

Classes for academic credit will also be offered on a demand basis and will increase or decrease depending on the need. It will be possible for non-NSTL personnel to take classes at this facility rather than drive to Long Beach.

as possible," Mrs. Webb said.

According to Webb a fall schedule will be released this summer. In the developmental stage are offerings in the following programs: computer science, geology, real estate, business education, accounting, education and industrial psychology.

The USM-NSTL facility is located in building 2423 and the phone number is 688-3053. Mrs. Webb may also be reached at Gulf Park in Long Beach at 664-2155.

"We are delighted to have an office in Hancock County to make our services available to that area of the Coast as we have been able to do at Gulf Park, Keeler and in Jackson County," Holloway said.

"Persons with academic needs, credit or non-credit, should make these needs known to us so that future planning will be as complete as possible."

Davenport, Shaw move up in broadcasting

Steve Davenport, general manager of Bay St. Louis radio station, WXGR, has accepted a position as general manager of the Mississippi Agricultural and News Network in Jackson.

Davenport said he resigned his local position effective June 18.

Farley Shaw, formerly program director at WXGR, has been named to succeed Davenport as WXGR general manager, according to Tom Caruso, attorney for Bay Broadcasting Corp., owners of the station.

Shaw, a Gulfport native, has been a resident of Bay St. Louis and a WXGR employee for the past four years.

Formerly in charge of music and format at WXGR, Shaw said he expects no changes in the station's broadcast policies as a result of the management change.

Davenport said he does not foresee any further personnel changes other than the move by him and Shaw.

The state-wide network to be managed by Davenport is composed of some 60 am and fm outlets including WXGR and will provide facilities for coverage of Mississippi State and New Orleans Saints football games this fall, Davenport reported.

Davenport said he and his wife, the former Helen Dees of Wiggins, will be moving to Jackson this week following the Mississippi Broadcasters Convention which was held in Biloxi last weekend.

Shaw is married to the former Lynn Daniels of Gulfport.

NORDA slates fall oceanographic courses

The Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) will inaugurate a series of oceanographic workshops during the late summer and fall of 1979. This series is planned to be an annual event that will focus on areas of ocean research and engineering.

Workshop topics will be selected on the basis of their importance to the field of ocean science and technology and include: the use of satellite, radar and other remotely-sensed data in ocean forecasting and hydrodynamics; deep ocean sediment modeling; near-surface ocean experimental technology; and other subjects at the forefront of the field.

As a result, the attendees are expected to include some of the nation's outstanding researchers from academic, industrial and government institutions and laboratories.

Workshop proceedings will be published wherever appropriate. Attendance at each workshop will be sponsored by the Office of Naval Research, NORDA's parent activity.

The first 1979 workshop will be deep-sea sediment modeling. Entitled "Interpretative Modeling of Deep Ocean Sediments and Their Physical Properties," it will be held on September 5-7.

The workshop will address several aspects of an issue that is considered to be very important by many Navy oceanographers, geophysicists, and acousticians: how to determine and predict the geological characteristics of the sea floor that influence underwater sound propagation.

An adequate knowledge of sea floor properties, including the deposition and transport of sediment, is required for the development of geoaoustic models or computer simulations of specific areas of the sea floor.

These data, in turn, serve as input to acoustic models. Specifically, bottom acoustic models would be capable of predicting the sound propagation of both the water column and sea floor as an integral unit.

The next NORDA workshop, entitled "Use of Satellite Data in Ocean Analysis and Predictions," will take place on October 9-11.

Satellite data plays an important role in the development of useful and effective computer models that can forecast both the atmospheric and oceanic environment in support of Navy operations.

In addition, satellites can provide synoptic data on a global scale without expensive sea operations. The information collected by satellites includes sea surface temperature, air temperature, humidity, cloud cover, atmospheric water vapor profiles, precipitation and ocean turbidity.

The third workshop, entitled "Ocean Experimental Technology," will be held on November 6-8. The performance of several new Navy hardware systems depends on the Navy's ability to predict the characteristics of the near-surface ocean environment.

This requirement has placed new emphasis on understanding the physical phenomena of the upper 300 meters of the world's oceans, which, in turn, increases our dependence on measurement techniques. This workshop will bring together technologists who will address the question of need versus technique in this very challenging measurement zone.

Significant advances in experimental equipment technology can be expected in the next few years through the innovative application of new developments in miniaturized low-power electronics, integrated circuits, microprocessors, fiber optics, high-strength, lightweight materials, and analytical predictive modeling techniques.

Specialists utilizing these developments will report on current progress and the search for new and innovative ways of measuring the fine-scale and dynamic process near the surface of the deep ocean.

The last workshop, which is scheduled from November 13-15, will be devoted to the interpretation of electromagnetic returns, principally radar signals, from the sea surface.

In particular, newly-developed synthetic aperture radar systems designed for installation on satellites as well as aircraft can possibly provide a fine resolution of sea surface phenomena.

The methods for interpretation of returns from these sensors will be an objective of this workshop. Another area of discussion is recent experiments investigating the modification of sea surface roughness patterns by ocean currents and eddies which determined that it should be possible to track them by aircraft or satellite based radar.

The major objective of this NORDA workshop is to bring together hydrodynamicists, oceanographers and physicists to exchange views and gain a mutual understanding of their requirements and procedures.

Further details on the individual workshops will be announced at a later date.

State Garden Clubs give June planting guidelines

JUNE GARDEN GUIDE

The garden can be at its best in June if spring maintenance has been regular. Correct pruning in February and proper fertilization in March or April ensure a good show of bloom.

Continue to sow seed of marigold, zinnias and other annual bedding plants to extend the bloom season in your flower beds until fall frost.

This is the last call for pruning spring-flowering shrubs, such as azaleas, camellias, forsythia, flowering quince, and others that flower on the previous season's wood. Remove wayward branches and shoots and any damaged wood.

Now is a good time to dig and divide established clumps of mums. Also set out rooted cuttings from the nursery. As transplants become established, begin pinching out the tips of stems to encourage branching.

Be on the lookout for signs of powdery mildew on crepe myrtles. This fungus appears as a white, dusty substance on leaves and flowers. Captan, a fungicide, will control powdery mildew when applied according to the instruction.

Be sure that houseplants that have been moved outdoors receive adequate water. Plants will require less water during cloudy, humid weather than during clear, dry weather. Inspect plants regularly for insects. Control with malathion or Sevin following directions.

Mow the lawn weekly to encourage lush growth. Never remove more than a half inch with each cutting. Water every 5 to 7 rainless days, water deeply to promote deep root penetration.

Give lawns the second feeding of the season. Apply a high-nitrogen fertilizer, such as 16-4-8. Establish warm season lawns of Bermuda, centipede, St. Augustine and zoysia. Keep plantings well watered until they become established. Also establish new ground cover beds in areas where turf grass is impractical.

Some good choices for shady areas include ajuga, English ivy, mondo grass, common periwinkle and blue liriopse. In sunny places try creeping junipers, asparagus fern, and Confederate jasmine.

Apply fertilizer to trees, shrubs and flowerbeds. Use a complete fertilizer such as 5-10-10 or 8-8-8.

Early June is a good time to make new plantings of vegetables to extend the harvest season into autumn. Vegetables to plant include cucumbers, eggplant, melons, okra, peas, peanuts, peppers and tomatoes.

A spray program may be necessary for controlling insects. Most insects that attack vegetables can be controlled with Sevin or malathion. Organic gardeners may prefer to use rotenone.

Follow directions on container. Fertilize vegetable gardens every three to four weeks with composted manure, cotton seed meal or other mild fertilizer recommended for vegetables.

Meet the Gulf Coast Brownbuilders... members of Brown & Root's worldwide team

Brown & Root, one of the world's largest engineering and construction companies, owes much of its success over the past 60 years to the skills and loyalty of its Brownbuilders.

Along the Gulf Coast, Brownbuilders are designing and constructing offshore oil and gas platforms and pipelines, chemical and petrochemical plants, power plants, bridges, highways, and oil field sites.

Whatever we do, wherever we do it, one thing remains the same. We recruit, hire, train and advance as many local people as possible. Gulf Coast Brownbuilders like the ones you see here—working on Brown & Root projects throughout the Gulf Coast states.

It's been our policy for years to hire locally first, so wherever Brown & Root works there are job opportunities for people qualified, willing, and able to work. That way, local communities, counties, and states get maximum benefit from projects on which we work—in jobs, payrolls, purchases, savings, and taxes.

Gulf Coast Brownbuilders...people like you at work near here.

Summer blueberries lauded by county home economist

By SHIRLEY G. ROBINSON
Home Economist

If you've ever had the pleasure of berry picking, you may recall the path to the berry patch, the woody fragrance of the bushes, the "plunk" of the first-picked berries into the pail. After washing, capping and chilling the berries, there is finally the berry-picker's reward—bowls of fresh plump berries.

Most southerners know about huckleberries, but to many of us, the blueberry, a more sophisticated member of the same berry family, is a relative stranger.

The huckleberry has 10 large bony seeds, while the blueberry has a large number of very small seeds—seeds so tiny that they are not noticed when eating the fruit. The blueberry also is more blue and is generally larger and sweeter than the huckleberry. Of the two, only blueberries are cultivated.

Blueberries are one of the newer agricultural crops now grown in Mississippi. In southern Mississippi several varieties have performed well according to J.M. Spiers, Plant Physiologist, Agricultural Research Service at Poplarville. These are "Tifblue," "Woodard," and "Delite." Other recommended varieties are "Southland," "Briteblue," "Bluegem," "Climax," and "Bluebell."

Blueberries are on the market from early May into September with the peak of abundance in July. New Jersey, North Carolina, and Michigan are the principal growing areas for commercial blueberry production.

Blueberries begin to ripen in June and are ready for picking after they have turned a uniform light blue. Most varieties do not ripen all at once, and the picking period is usually 4 to 6 weeks. Ripe berries can remain on the plant for a week or longer. When the berries become over-ripe, they deteriorate and drop off.

Select fresh berries that have bright fresh clean appearance, a solid full color, and those that have plump well-filled seed cells.

Avoid berries that have a dull lifeless color and are overripe. Those having signs of mold are decayed and aren't good. Avoid unripe seed cells since they do not ripen after picking. If the caps are attached they are not ripe so can never be top quality.

Stained boxes are a sign of overripe or crushed fruit. Sandy or muddy berries are very difficult to clean.

The berries are very fragile. Handle them carefully. Store them on a tray or platter in the refrigerator. Wash just before using (added moisture hastens breakdown or mold). Berries are best if used within a day or two, although they will keep up to a week at 32 degrees.

Blueberries are most famous for their delightful flavor. However, they have other advantages too. Blueberries can be classed as a convenience food because there is no peeling, no pitting, no washing, no peeling and no waste. A pint serves four people generously—and they are good for the weight watcher since a half-cup serving contains only 44 calories.

Fresh blueberries are a good source of Vitamin A and C, as well as potassium, phosphorus, and calcium. So enjoy blueberries fresh for snacks, in salads, desserts, muffins, breads, pancakes or on cereal or ice cream.

Shirley's Blueberry Cake
2 cups blueberry pie filling
1 small can crushed pineapple and liquid
1 box butter recipe cake mix
1 large can angel flake coconut
¾ cup chopped pecans
4 pound butter, melted
Grease a 13x9" dish. Layer as listed above, starting with blueberries, pour melted butter over top. Bake 325 degrees.

BLUEBERRY COBBLER
1 stick margarine
1 cup milk
1 cup sifted flour
1 cup sugar
1 quart blueberries
Melt margarine in bottom of baking pan or large baking dish. Add milk (do not stir). Sift flour and sugar. Add to dish (do not stir). Add blueberries. Bake at 325 degrees to 350 degrees until crust rises to top and brown.

We do a lot of looking before you start cooking.

You judge meat by the way it cooks and tastes when you get it home. We never forget that simple fact at A&P. Great eating is the single standard to all the meat we buy and sell. And, since we've been feeding Americans for more than 100 years, we've developed quite a bit of expertise in choosing just the right meat for our A&P stores.
